DEVELOPMENTAL PROFILE

1. Key workplace insights that enabled me to apply my skills, knowledge, and values.

   My first 200 hours of internship have been a valuable learning experience that allowed me to apply my skills in event management, communication, coordination, and relationship management. One of my key experiences was organizing a partnership signing ceremony from scratch and hosting the event with directors and CEOs from both the principal and partner companies in attendance. Although the responsibility added pressure, I learned to stay organized, manage expectations, and remain composed while ensuring the successful execution of the event. Aside from this, I continued supporting a distributor company under Huawei by maintaining regular cadence meetings and communication, monitoring its progress, sales pipeline, revenue, and planned marketing initiatives. These experiences helped me understand the importance of accountability, consistency, and proactive communication in a professional environment, especially when working with different stakeholders and managing responsibilities that contribute to business growth.

2. Areas of improvement

Although my internship has given me opportunities to handle responsibilities that prepare me for the expectations of a regular employee, I recognize that I still have a lot to learn and improve on. I want to become more confident in making decisions, managing tasks independently, and understanding the processes behind the responsibilities assigned to me. I also need to be more transparent and proactive in communicating with my supervisor, especially when I encounter challenges, have uncertainties, or need clarification on certain tasks. Rather than trying to figure everything out on my own, I want to learn when to ask questions, provide timely updates, and raise concerns before they become bigger issues. Moving forward, I aim to take greater ownership of my work while remaining open to feedback, recognizing my limitations, and continuously developing the skills and judgment needed to become a more effective and reliable professional.
